

Student's Society Meeting Being Held Today In Union Ballroom At Five O'clock

Postponed From Last Wednesday Due To Lack of Quorum of 100—Revision of Constitution, Change in Annual, Financial Reports on Agenda.

Matters of much interest and importance to the undergraduate body will be brought up for discussion at the semi-annual meeting of the Students' Society to be held in the Union Ballroom at 5 p.m. today. Among these are those of changing the Annual from a Junior to a Senior book, the financial reports of the Union House Committee, the Council, and other bodies, and the reports of the committee which was appointed last year to investigate the proposed revision of the Constitution of the Society. Other pertinent topics which may be brought up by any members will also be discussed at length. Last week the meeting could not be held due to an insufficiency of members attending. One hundred men, at least, are necessary, and the President and others concerned hope that many others will attend.

First Meeting Of New Club

Peace Treaties And Abolishment of War Discussed

THREE PAPERS

House Of Commons Club
Chooses President and Executive

"If women were given positions on the Cabinet would the effort to stop war be realized? Are small nations important in arbitration, and if so which are the unimportant nations?" These were a few of the questions raised and discussed at the first meeting of the House of Commons Club held at the R.V.C. last night.

Elections were held with the following results:

Chairman, Gwen R. P. Roberts.
Executive, B. Fernyhough and D. J. Ross.

The Club proposes to meet every third Wednesday, in the R.V.C.

The purpose of the first paper, "Treaties and Alliances of the Past," was to present an historical background for the other papers given.

The speaker, Gwen Roberts defined the three classes of treaties in the following way: first, the elementary kind, which deals solely with territorial lines; second, that which merely brings to an end a particular war without endeavoring to provide a basis for a lasting peace; third, that type which does seem to be consummated with the view of a lasting peace, which is usually called an alliance rather than a treaty, and which would go today by the name of a

"Best Yet" Is Motto Of Prom

Fewer Tickets To Be Given
Out This Year

In view of the fact that the ballroom was uncomfortably crowded at the last Junior Prom, it was decided by the Committee at their meeting last night that fewer tickets will be issued this year. These will be on sale shortly.

"The best yet" seems to have been taken as the motto of the Committee, who have left in the hands of the representatives from Science and Architecture, the decoration of the hall. Novel designs and unusual features will be introduced, and the hall will become "a thing of beauty" under their hands.

The chairman, Stuart Webster, made an earnest plea that all faculties should see that their representatives attended these meetings. Last night, the only offender was the student nominated by Law.

In the October 20 issue of the Daily, it was reported that a prize would be awarded the student who submitted a design most suitable for the programme cover. The Committee announced that this prize had been withdrawn, as the work will be done by the Architecture representatives.

That very important item—the catering—will be taken care of by Miss Anne Hyde. Attractive and unusual favors will be provided by Miss Virginia Simpson and Mr. Marchand. Conductors of orchestras are again reminded that tenders for the orchestra should be sent to P. R. Marchand, 2651 Park Ave.

The names of the patrons and chaperons will be announced at the next meeting, which is to take place next Monday evening, at five o'clock.

Where are you going to be today at five?

It is expected that the question of the Annual will elicit brisk discussion. There would be several advantages in changing it from the Junior to the Senior year. Among these are the fact that when the Annual is made up in the Junior year only about two thirds of the undergraduate career of the student is included, and that under the new scheme it would cover nearly the whole four years; the fact that many of the Juniors never graduate; and the smaller cost of photographs. As it is now, a student must have a photograph taken for the Annual in his Junior year, and must have another taken a year later when he graduates. Under the new system as suggested this duplication would be obviated.

On the other hand, there are disadvantages to be reckoned with. There may be some difficulty in finding enough senior men to carry on the work entailed in the preparation of the Annual. If the proposal is carried out, the graduating class of that year will be almost the same as the Junior class of the previous year and consequently this class will furnish the material for the Annual on two successive years. It has been remarked that if the change takes place, sales may fall off, but this is not expected, because sixty percent of the copies are bought by the members of the class in question, and many graduates who buy the Annual are known to approve of the prospective change.

The question of the continuance of the Red and White Revue will not have to be brought up, as a decision in this matter has already been reached by the Student's Council.

In regard to the constitution of the Student's Society, Gordon Nairn, the president of the committee which was formed last year to investigate this matter, will submit his report.

G. H. Fletcher, Secretary-treasurer of the Student's Council and Treasurer of the Union, will deliver the financial statement of the Society. The Student's Council is now working on this, and a solution is expected to be arrived at before the semi-annual meeting next spring. The question is urgent, but the Council has as yet arrived at no final decision.

The Union House Committee will submit its annual report at the same time.

One hundred students are needed at the meeting to make a quorum, and it is the duty of every student who can possibly attend the meeting to be there. Everyone is given the opportunity of expressing his views, and all suggestions advanced will be considered.

Officers Are Elected

Weldon Is New Pres. of Mining and Metallurgical Society

Fred Weldon was elected President of the Mining and Metallurgical Society at a meeting held yesterday afternoon in the Chemistry and Mining building. Professor W. G. McBride became Honorary President, the office of Vice-President was filled by Norm Cantlon, and that of Secretary-Treasurer by H. R. Neville.

It was decided to collect the sum of two dollars from each member of the Society for the purpose of affiliating themselves as students with the Canadian Mining and Metallurgical Society. This would entitle each member to a copy of that Society's monthly Periodical.

November 16 was selected as the date of the big annual banquet.

It was announced that noted men in the field of Mining and Metallurgy would lecture before the Society at future meetings. After the lecture, the meeting would be thrown open to discussion.

Jack Little, former McGill football star and graduate in the School of Commerce, has taken a position in Winnipeg with the firm of Robinson, Little and Company.

A. T. Bennett

The body of A. T. Bennett, whose sudden death occurred from heart trouble in the Engineering Building on Monday, was sent home last night to his parents in Toronto. Accompanying the body were wreaths from the Science Undergraduates Society, the Faculty, and from Science '30, his own class.

Contrary to the many rumors circulating around the Campus and in certain newspapers, the body was not sent to the morgue; but to a funeral parlor. At a formal inquest yesterday, a verdict of death from natural causes was returned. Bennett had been previously troubled with his heart.

Gave Methods Used To Find Sulphide Ores

Dr. Keys Lectures On Electrical Prospecting

SLIDES SHOWN

Schlumberger's Two-Electrode Method Using Natural Currents Explained

Electrical prospecting for sulphide ores was described by Dr. D. A. Keys in the second of a series of lectures on prospecting in the Macdonald Physics Building last night. Dr. Keys illustrated the methods employed by finding several sulphide specimens concealed in a trough of sand.

Concluding his talk on magnetic methods of prospecting the lecturer explained the principle of the compass variometer. This instrument has as yet not been actually employed but in Dr. Key's opinion, it will come into general use sooner or later. The earth inductor, which illustrated the principle of the dynamo, is another instrument used in magnetic prospecting.

Defining the gauss, the unit used in measuring magnetic fields, Dr. Keys pointed out that mining engineers generally employed the gamma, which is 1,000,000 gauss. By finding the value of the magnetic field at different stations in any given territory, one can determine the position of any magnetic ore present underground.

Dr. Keys then outlined the Schlumberger method of locating sulphide ores. These ores behave like batteries, electric currents passing from one end of the mass of ore to the other. These currents pass through the earth and flow into one end of the ore. This is called the negative centre and the whole problem resolves itself into finding this centre.

In order to measure these currents two electrodes are struck into the ground about a hundred feet apart and the current is measured by means of a microammeter. Another method consists in finding the potential difference across these electrodes by means of a Leeds and Northrup potentiometer.

Schlumberger's improvement on the electrodes was in placing them in non-polarizable cells and sinking these cells into the ground stated Dr. Keys. Copper sulphate solutions with copper wires making the connection from the solution to the microammeter are generally employed.

Dr. Keys stressed the fact that this natural current method is only applicable to oxidizing sulphides. In order that the ore may oxidize it is necessary that water should be present around it.

Several slides were shown which included a few photographs of the territory in which Dr. Keys and Dr. Eve were prospecting last summer. Curves based upon data obtained while they were prospecting were also shown, and Dr. Keys pointed out the conclusions which were drawn at the different points along these curves.

Next Tuesday Dr. Keys will speak on the different methods employed to find the depth of veins of ore.

CHEMICAL INDUSTRY CLUB

The members of the above club will meet on the steps of the Chemistry Building to-day at 2 P.M. The club will then convene to Dawes Brewery to inspect process.

The Honorable R. B. Bennett has promised to speak to the students of McGill in a debate or otherwise in the near future, according to Col. Bovey. Mr. Bennett is Leader of the Federal Opposition.

See you in the Union Ballroom at five.

Large Crowd Expected At Conversat

Strathcona Hall To Be Scene
Of Revelry

COMMERCE AT 8

University Colors Being Used in Decorations—Only One
Supper Sitting

The social season at McGill commences tonight with the Conversat, which will be held in Strathcona Hall and starts at 8. This event has been eagerly awaited by both Upperclassmen and by Freshmen as well. Judging by the amount of excitement on the Campus caused by the near approach of this function, the Committee in charge have not made any mistake in preparing for a large assembly. The Conversat has proved a great success in the past and this year will prove to be no exception to the rule. As there is no admission price and it is quite informal there can be no possible reason why everybody cannot be present and enjoy a good time.

There are still several questions on the Campus regarding this function. The Conversat is really to enable the Freshmen and the Freshettes to meet on an informal basis; but nevertheless all are welcome and should come along to meet the newcomers to McGill this year. On entering the Hall, each individual will receive a white card and a programme. The use of the program is well understood; but on the card each one is requested to write his or her name and to pin it in some conspicuous place on dress or coat. The girls will go to the parts of the hall designated by the first letter in their surname. The men are requested not to stand in the doorways and to choose their partners quietly for each "Conversat". No rushing will be permitted on account of danger to the Freshettes.

The demands for pennants and colors with which to decorate the Hall have not yet been satisfied, and anyone who can in some manner or other obtain decorations are requested to do so. They should be handed in at Strathcona Hall along with the name of the lender. The name is all important if the return of the articles is desired.

MacMaster Is Vice-President

Manion and Wight Nominated for Sec. of Com. Society

W. R. MacMaster has been elected by acclamation to the vice-presidency of the Commercial Society, and James P. Manion and Willis E. Wight have been nominated for the position of secretary. The elections for the position of secretary will be held on Wednesday Oct. 31, in the smoking room of the Arts Building.

These nominations are necessitated by the fact that E. Brodhead and Stuart Wood have resigned from their respective positions of vice-president and secretary of the Society.

Manion has been nominated Secretary by the following: Stuart Webster, John M. C. Gambler, W. B. Seaton, E. Brodhead, W. C. Montgomery, H. E. Williams, G. C. Jones, W. Strain, A. R. Wright, A. K. Doull.

Wight was nominated by: W. H. Budden, W. Consiglio, C. A. Burk, L. Ireland, W. Strain, L. Shelley, L. Scott-Moncrief, R. K. Giddings, A. R. Wright, R. C. Baird, F. W. Hamilton.

Electricals Plan Trips

Visit Cedars Power Plant Friday—Officers Elected

A trip to the Cedars Power Plant of the Montreal Light, Heat, and Power, Cons. by the fourth year Electricals was arranged at a meeting of the Electrical Club yesterday afternoon. This trip to take place next Friday Oct. 26. Visits to other Power plants were also discussed.

Officers were elected with the following results:

Prof. C. V. Christie—Hon. President.

Prof. G. A. Wallace—Hon. Vice-President.

G. A. Bell—Secretary.

J. B. Francis—Treasurer.

Three students papers are to be read at the next meeting, which will take place Wednesday October 31 at 12 noon.

Do you really want student self-government?

To the Undergraduates:

Dear Fellow Students:—

May I, on behalf of the Student's Executive Council, present to the Undergraduate body our attitude with regard to the grossly unfair and slanderous editorial which appeared in the Daily yesterday.

Under another heading you will find the matter more fully detailed, following the action adopted by the Council.

I merely wish to state here that the publication of the article was the result of negligence and misplaced trust on the part of the Editor-in-Chief, whose resignation the Council has refused to accept in view of our findings.

I deeply regret that the mistake was made, and I trust that the Undergraduates of all races and of all creeds will be more tolerant in their judgment than the writer of the article was, in being so ill advised as to take advantage of our columns and our courtesy to express what was no more than a personal narrow bigoted opinion.

I trust that the findings and the action of the Council will prove satisfactory to the Undergraduates, and I wish to reassure you that there is nothing further removed from our policy, than race distinction or partiality.

Our University is too big to permit of any petty bigotry among her subjects, and as representatives of the Undergraduates the Council does not tolerate any artificial barriers that will cause discord in our relations of one with the other.

H. PAUL MELANSON.

Old Scouts Club To Be Reorganized

Professor French Tells of Good Work in Other Universities

"There is certainly a place for an Old Scouts' Club in the University," said Professor R. D. L. French, Commissioner for Rovers in Montreal, at the organization meeting of the Old Scouts' Club in Strathcona Hall yesterday. "And if it is continued as it should certainly be," he added, "I will guarantee that there will be plenty of work for it to do." A committee of five of which Ernest R. Austin is the convener, was nominated.

In view of the fact that there is estimated to be about two hundred and fifty old scouts in the university and the fact that the club has had a meritorious past, the old scouts assembled last night thought that it would be well to continue the club. Professor French told of visiting the University of Illinois where a similar club had a membership of over eight hundred and was directly responsible for five troops in the town where the university was located.

A canvass will be made of all students who have had some connection with the Movement and a committee of five was nominated. These were E. Austin, convener, A. J. Cipriani, G. Laroque, W. L. Wilson and R. C. Calder. A meeting will be held in the near future and plans will be discussed.

Comets

Lecture in Astronomy to be Given Tomorrow

"COMETS" will be the subject of a lecture to be given to-morrow at 8.15 p.m. in the Macdonald Physics Laboratory at the first meeting of the Montreal Centre of the Royal Astronomical Society. The lecturer Mr. R. M. Motherwell, who for many years was on the staff of the Dominion Observatory at Ottawa, describes his talk as being "a review of the history of outstanding comets with all modern theories as to their formation and constitution."

Students of McGill University are especially welcome at the meetings and if there be any who desire to become members of the R.A.S.C. they should send their names to the secretary R.A.S.C., Macdonald Physics Laboratory, McGill University. The annual fee is two dollars and entitles one to the monthly Journal of the Society and the Annual observers handbook as well as to the notices of meetings held usually six or seven times a year.

COLUMBIA CLUB

Last Sunday, the executive of the Women's Columbian Club gave a tea at the home of Mrs. S. C. Varsaid, who is one of the first members of the club. The gathering was attended by about 35 members.

The Women's Columbian Club is one founded for the Catholic girls attending the McGill University. A tea is to be held in the early part of November, and in addition, various other social activities have been planned for the coming year.

What about the Annual?

Red And White Revue Will Be Produced Again

Traditional Show Will Appear in Spring of 1929

STUDENTS' COUNCIL

Ruling Body Also Takes Up
Question of Biased Editorial

The Red and White Revue, feature of the McGill dramatic season for the last five years, will be produced again this year. The Students' Executive Council at their meeting yesterday passed a motion in favor of continuing the Revue, which will make its appearance again during the spring of 1929. Fred Weldon, Vice-President of the Council, was elected as Chairman of a committee to take charge of organizing students interested in such a production so that work may commence as soon as possible. Contributions will be asked for as usual from the student body in the form of skits, music, etc. The committee will later nominate a permanent Revue committee to undertake the actual production of the show. An organization meeting will be called together within the course of the next few days.

The Council unanimously passed a resolution extending their sincere sympathy to the parents of A. T. Bennett of Science '30 who passed away suddenly in the Engineering Building last Monday afternoon.

The question of an editorial entitled "Women At Rugby" which appeared in yesterday's Daily, and which on account of its religious bias caused a storm of criticism, was brought up before the Council, and a resolution was passed, censuring the Managing Board of the Daily for their negligence in allowing this editorial to appear, demanding an official apology from the Managing Board in the columns of the Daily, and requesting them to ask the writer of this editorial to sever all connection with the Daily Staff. The editorial in question, it was pointed out, had been allowed to pass without the knowledge of the Managing Board, and it was regretted that such an occurrence should be construed as a part of the policy of the McGill Daily.

Program For Informal Out

Buffet Supper to be Served at Two Sitzings

Nine fox trots, three waltzes, and four extras comprise the program for the first informal dance on Friday. It was announced yesterday. To accommodate the large crowd that is expected to be present, two suppers, one after the sixth dance, and the other after the seventh dance, will be served in buffet style in the cafeteria.

Professor and Mrs. Goforth and Mrs. Vaughn, acting warden of the R.V.C., will act as chaperons at the dance. Izzy Aspler and his seven-piece orchestra will provide the music. The latest and peppiest pieces of the day will be played.

Tickets are now obtainable from the Class presidents and at the Union Tuck Shop, for $1.25. Up till now they have been selling fast, and a record crowd is expected. Everybody should turn out to make the first informal of the year bigger, better and more enjoyable than ever before.

The program is as follows:

1. Waltz.
2. Fox Trot.
3. Fox Trot.
4. Fox Trot.
5. Fox Trot.
6. Fox Trot.
7. Fox Trot.
8. Fox Trot.
9. Waltz.
10. Fox Trot.
11. Fox Trot.
12. Waltz.

points of view, and is well qualified to present a picture of the change in methods of thought which has taken place in this field.

All interested are invited to attend the lecture.

The members of the Society are requested to meet fifteen minutes earlier in the Library of the Physics Department.

100 hardy souls needed at five.

MONTREAL, WEDNESDAY, OCT. 24, 1928.

The editorial columns of the Daily have always been a medium for the expression of the most complete understanding between the various races and sects represented on the Campus. It is consequently a matter of deep regret to the Managing Board that sentiments wholly out of harmony with its own attitude were expressed in a paragraph of one of the editorials of yesterday's issue.

Editorials published in this column are in the nature of official opinions regarding the subjects being discussed, and are therefore usually carefully scrutinized by the editor-in-chief. The editorial in question was inserted without being so scrutinized, and the objectionable paragraph thus passed in unobserved.

Nothing could be farther from the minds of the editors of this paper than to promote a smouldering animosity between races leading to the creation of unnatural barriers. It has been the consistent effort of the Daily in the past to strive for good feeling rather than discord, and understanding rather than prejudice. We trust that what has happened will not be policy.

It might be as well to mention here that the night editor, who has charge of the make up of the news section of the paper, is in no wise responsible for the editorial column, and that the editor of Tuesday's issue had no knowledge of what was inserted in that column.

SPEECH! SPEECH!

More than three weeks of the session have passed, and as yet no news has been heard of undergraduate debating. It is true that one of our leading debaters has been selected to join the team representing Canadian Universities now touring England. And it is true that another of our best speakers is no longer with us. But the loss of two men cannot possible account for this absence of activity in debating circles.

Last year various classes in the Arts Faculty conducted class debating contests; these oratorical combats aroused much interest, not only in the classes concerned, but among the general student body. The class of Arts 29, now the Senior year, claim to have originated this praiseworthy branch of class activity. To date we have heard no news of these class societies. What are they doing?

The Law Faculty has always been identified with the cause of good oratory at this university, and for good reason, namely that eloquence is an factor essential to the lawyer who would make his name in court. The Arts Faculty, too, has always played a prominent part in our debating, not only by forming these class societies, but also by enthusiastically supporting the Debating Union Society. But it is a fallacy to believe that the art of comely speech is a perquisite of these two faculties. Two years ago, for instance, the Bovey Shield for Freshmen Debaters was captured by a student in the Faculty of Applied Science.

There is plenty of enthusiasm for the cause of public speaking at McGill. It rests with those in whose hands the organization of debates lies to see that their program is speedily started. In particular we would like to hear that more classes, not only in the faculty of Arts, had formed debating societies. At present the men students are shamed by the R.V.C. debaters, who, last year, gained for McGill the Intercollegiate Trophy.

THE CONVERSAT

An event which has no parallel in other colleges, as far as we have heard, takes place to-night in Strathcona Hall when the Conversat starts. Whoever originated the idea of a dance at which no dancing is done must have been quite a conversationalist. The contemplation of an evening of talk would seem to be enough to scare away many of us ordinary men. Perhaps the women are more in their element. The queer part is, however, that more men generally come than women. Wonder why?

The Conversat is, however, a very fine way of starting the social season at the University. It offers a novel way, particularly for freshmen and women of making friends, and that it is appreciated is shown by the large crowd that invariably gathers. It is a good advance guard for the first Union House Informal on Friday, and should play no small part in starting of our round of University Dances successfully.

IT IS TO LOWBROW

In which a LOWBROW just reacts against this, that and the other, and prints his reactions.

Now then, let us formulate a song, or war-cry, or what you will—that is, if you will it to be anything but a creed; the lowbrow has no creed because he follows no rules, but his plan may for the present be given as follows:

We don't like

WHAT IS

because it is what it is;
We like it if we see there is

HEALTH IN IT.

We don't like the

DOGMA:

"What should be," or the

DOGMA:

"What is,"

But whatever is, we seek out the WEALTH IN IT.

ACCORDING TO THE PAPERS

There was a tram-car accident in the paper the other day in which the motorman, after the control box had burst into flames, left his car while it was in motion, and

RAN TO THE BACK.

Which action will probably stigmatize him for life. If he had stayed at his post, the human world would not have been any more likely to consider his action as a matter of course. They would have hailed his badly-burned figure before a pompous governmental representative, and decorated it with medals and other emblematical trinkets. He might have been the centre of an electoral competition, and reaped considerable reward from Mr. Hoover's and Mr. Smith's parties.

As it was, he did what 999 out of 1,000 of us would have done at; let us say, a theatre panic. And we have an idea that the same 999 of us who would do likewise, are the 999 who would stigmatize him for life.

It is often comforting, however, to notice that pianists at picture theatres, captains of boats, motormen of streets cars, and others in similar responsible positions, remarkably often do not belong to our 999.

WE ALSO SAW THAT

The Siriono Indians were quite perturbed at seeing their first automobile, and we have something to say about

THE SIRIONES

They got a great fright
At civilized sight
From their heads to their toes,
The Siriones;

Those devils on wheels,
The automobiles;
The blundering trains,
The air-co-planes

We laugh in our cuffs as we read of the woes
Of the Siriones.

II

We courageously board
The collegiate Ford
That roars, as it goes
The Siriones;
But if we got lost
Their haunts, we got lost
Our light unconcern
To terror would turn
If we came on a party (in warrior's clothes)
Of Siriones.

Sir Rennell Rodd added his denunciation of free verse to that of Alfred Noyes, but he did give us a fairly good reason why 99 per cent of free verse is pure rot (1%), and impure rot (98%). It is because any intelligent person can reel off a dozen lines of free verse in a minute, and any fool the same amount in five minutes, which would conform to the mechanical standards of free verse if there were any. And most aesthetes write free verse because they are too lazy to write conventional verse.

Because the true values of free verse are so nebulous that only the most competent authorities can judge them with real accuracy, good free verse is really the hardest sort of verse to write. Indeed, only those poets who have had a long and profitable schooling in the artistry of words should attempt it. Sir Rennell should try. But he won't.

LITERATURE AND SATIRE

From my book entitled: "A Textbook of English Literature," which I am too lazy to write:

DEFINITION

CONTEMPORARY LITERATURE is written by authors who sink whatever nobility of thought they possess, and write the sort of stuff that the public will buy.

SATIRE is made possible by the public that are amused at seeing the stuff they make our authors write, ridiculed.

ANSWER TO THE QUESTION: IS MODERN YOUTH IN REVOLT AGAINST THE UNREASONABLE CONVENTIONS OF THE PREVIOUS CENTURY, AND DESIROUS OF LETTING THE WORLD KNOW THAT IT CAN THINK FOR ITSELF IN THE INTERESTS OF TRUTH?

Yes.

College Comment

FOOTBALL'S VALUE

After all what does a victory in football mean? If sports don't create a spirit of clean play, and friendly competition, they have failed. Football teaches a fellow to think rapidly, and after all most anything that teaches a fellow to give an answer, or make a decision while the other fellow is chewing the end of a pencil, is worth while. When young men are trained to think rapidly and logically, and a sense of clean play is developed, athletes rightfully warrant and deserve the tremendous place they hold in the intercollegiate life of this country.—S. California "Daily Trojan".

Mission Group Reassembles

F. Lane to Address First Meeting Tomorrow

Christian missions to the average student perhaps don't mean very much. If the word missions, or missionary, brings any picture to his mind it is something like that of a pious looking, black coated figure standing under a palm tree, while the natives rally round, trying to improve their morals, chiefly by putting pants on them.

Those who are interested in the subject believe that Christian missionary enterprise is a movement of world wide significance. One missionary statesman says: "The Christian missionary enterprise has been the greatest conscious, voluntary, continuously constructive international movement known to the human race." At any rate the subject of Christian missions is more than the movies would give one to believe, and worth digging into.

Those McGill students who made up a few of the 4000 at the Student Missionary Convention at Detroit last year received a memorable impression of the tremendous significance and worthwhileness of the Christian world enterprise.

A group has been formed again this year to continue the study of missions. The first regular meeting will be held to-morrow (Thursday) at 5 p.m. in Strathcona Hall. A program and plans for the year will be submitted. At this meeting the group will also have the privilege of meeting Mr. F. Lane, who has spent nearly forty years in Portuguese West Africa, and hearing something of his experiences.

An invitation is extended to all those who are interested.

This year there is a new system of serving supper. There will be only one supper, as on previous occasions the system of having three has caused a good deal of trouble and delay. Supper will be served from the two downstairs offices. A single file line will pass into the offices from the entrance in the large room and it will pass out into the front hall. If this arrangement is carried out properly an extra 'conversat' will be possible.

All are reminded that the Conversat starts at 8, and are requested to be on time so that it may get underway without delay.

FIRST MEETING OF NEW CLUB

security pact. All treaties are in the end, however, security pacts, or at least aim at some sort of a security for some one. The last three often include the first, but often treaties are found dealing only with boundaries. A number of treaties of the past were given as examples of these different classes, the third class being considered the most important.

The second paper, by Marjorie Tennant, was on "The Security Pact of the Present." It gave a very general survey of some of the more important pacts since the Great War. The treaty of Versailles was the first to be touched upon. This treaty formed the League of Nations, which has led to much discussion pro and con.

Another outstanding attempt to make international security more certain was the Protocol for the pacific settlement of international disputes. It was formed with the view of facilitating Germany's entry into the League. Great Britain, however, found that she could not agree to this and brought forward the Locarno Pact in 1925.

In the third paper, on "Social and Economic Conditions of War," Mr. Greaves stated that "social and economic conditions have at any time been the consequences of the last war and the antecedents of the next." Mr. Greaves in his fine presentation of human destiny, presents the whole history of war as one of conflict and catastrophe, decay and decadence, striving the course of time. He starts with the war as the opening scene of history. Men fight to get what they want, they know no other way of getting it, and they recognize a right to whatever force can obtain.

During the Thirty Years War, Grotius wrote what is now regarded as the first book on international law, giving as his reasons for writing that he had been moved by the horrors of the time, that "wars began on trifling pretexts, or none at all, and carried on without any reverence for any divine or human law, as if that one declaration of war let loose every crime."

He saw the beginning of the functioning of the modern war machine. Frederick I of Russia had a craze for collecting and drilling tall soldiers, and the result of this hobby was to show Europe that discipline and statuary in military matters could win more power and glory for a country than wealth and territory. But Grotius was too early for the sci-

At The Theatres

AT THE GAYETY

"The Bohemians," the attraction at the Gayety theatre this week, opened before a large audience and should prove a winner at the local Mutual burlesque house this week. The piece is replete with roaring comedy, song and dance. A capacity audience greeted the opening of this new show last night with evident delight.

Art Mayer, the principal comedian heads the cast, and he proved himself one of the most resourceful comedians on the circuit. His every appearance was the signal for a burst of laughter. Frankie "Red" Moore headed the female contingent, and made a decided hit with the audience. Her dances and songs were uniformly good and she was called on time and again for encores.

The chorus is without doubt the liveliest of any Mutual show here this season and proved a decided addition to the show. "The Bohemians" is recommended as unusually good diversion for any overworked student.

Paul Whiteman In Louisiana Program

Featured at First Philharmonic Concert

(By Exchange Service)—Paul Whiteman and his orchestra will be featured as the first of a series of the Philharmonic Programs in the Baton Rouge High School auditorium on October 30 by the music department of the university. Dr. H. W. Stopher, head of the music faculty is sponsoring the presentation.

In an article to the department here, Gilbert Seldes, pioneer critic of popular music, states that it will be a surprise to many people to read that Paul Whiteman did not invent the saxophone. However, it is Whiteman's peculiar claim to pre-eminence in the development of the modern small orchestra that he realized the musical implications of the instrument.

The Whiteman band was the first to orchestrate popular music for dancing. Now that the developments in composition and orchestra of Europe and the respect of serious composers and conductors, they have begun to win their way to the friendly attention of concert goers. Mr. Whiteman was a pioneer in doing an entire concert of popular music at both Aeolian Hall and Carnegie Hall in New York, and since given at the Metropolitan Opera House, the Chicago Auditorium and the Boston Symphony Hall.

Work on The Messiah, oratorio of Handel, has already begun and will be presented by the department of music and the city choir on December 13 and 14 in Carle Hall. This attraction will be the third of the series as it is to be preceded by the appearance of Carlos Salzedo, harpist, on November 23.

The University Choral Club meets on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday mornings to practice the choruses of the oratorio. It is announced by Professor Stopher that a greater number of choruses and fewer solos will be given in The Messiah this year. Practice for the Glee Club and the members of the various church choirs is held at 8 o'clock on Friday nights. The soloists for the presentation have not yet been announced.

tific improvements of warfare; he missed high explosive, poison gas, liquid fire, and such modern inventions of civilization.

If he could write again, he would not doubt call his book "Peace and Hell." And with our recent experience, we must doubt whether the view of Frederick and their militaristic imitators was a sound one.

There may once have been a glory of warfare; but if there still is, it is difficult to know who shares it, or who exalts in it.

Men had fought before there were tribes, tribes had fought before there were nations. The growth of empires only meant the coming of weapons on an imperial scale.

Miss Greaves then stated the comparisons of loss of life and the expenditures of money between those countries engaged in the World War. The economic depression and the social distress which followed the war forced the public, and especially the economists to recognize the vital differences between the transitory and the contemporary effects of war and its ultimate more lasting consequences.

Such discussion on the three papers followed their reading and a number of arguments were raised which led to heated discussions among the members.

Seniors Start Workouts For Queen's Game

Consiglio, Track Captain, Turns Out With Football Squad

MAY PLAY EXHIBITION

Undaunted by the defeat by Queen's last Saturday, the McGill heavy football squad plunged into senior work at the stadium yesterday afternoon in preparation for the final lap in the race for the title. Toronto and Queen's open hostilities at the Queen City on Saturday, and despite the fact that McGill has two weeks before the next intercollegiate fixture, the red players are making sure that they will be at the top of their game when they travel to Kingston for the game with the tricolor.

Willie Consiglio, captain of the championship McGill track squad substituted his running shorts for gridiron togs and was out last night opposing the senior on the second team. Consiglio is known to be a tackler of outstanding ability, and with some practice this week, should make a serious bid for one of the outside wing positions on the regular squad. It was expected that Charlie Drew, individual point winner of the track meet, and a footballer of note, would turn out, but the track athlete failed to make an appearance. Drew made a reputation as a football player at Amherst and should be a valuable addition to the McGill half line.

The McGill squad may play an exhibition game at Toronto on November 17 against Varsity. It has been announced that in the event of neither Varsity nor McGill gaining the championship, the red squad will put on an exhibition at Toronto using the outside pass, in order to introduce the play to Toronto fans.

A special train will be run from Montreal to Kingston for the McGill-Queen's game it is announced. The train will leave Montreal at 9.50, and return shortly after the game, arriving in Montreal about 9 in the evening. A special rate of $8.00 including a ticket to the game should insure a large attendance of McGill supporters for the big test at Kingston.

Ken Tremblin, regular McGill half, who has kept out of the line-up Saturday due to an injured knee, was on the field yesterday but confined his efforts to running around the gridiron. Tremblin's knee is in fair shape, but the backfield player is keeping out of heavy scrimmage in order to make sure of sound physical condition when McGill plays Queen's. Coaches Tommy Hall and "Flin" Flanagan, lined up with the seniors against the seniors last night. The veterans showed some of their old time form, each running through for a touch. It was a muddy field, and the appearance of the grim-covered veterans battering through the entire senior squad gave indication that the coaches have still plenty of good rugby in them yet, despite an obvious pause every now and again for a breath or air.

Drives For Funds Thought Obsolete

Indiana Finds Method Has Become Unpopular

That the "Drive method of raising funds was born of the World War and should have died with it is the opinion expressed in an editorial in the "Indiana Daily Student" whether this is so or not, the fact remains that "Drives" have become unpopular at Indiana.

"That the present system of raising funds for the support of various worthwhile campus projects, namely by 'drives' is both archaic and frequently ineffective, was markedly demonstrated recently when the R.O.C. band trip fund campaign fell far short of its objective.

Everywhere that volunteer canvassers went they were met with heated objections to continuing this over-worked method of financing campus projects. No one questioned the purpose of the drive, but virtually everyone vigorously protested against being "hit right and left" for contributions to this and that project.

The "drive" was born of the World War and should have been allowed to die with it. With drives popping up unexpectedly throughout the college year the would-be donor is never able to prepare a budget to meet the demands placed upon him. Consequently, many a worthy project fails of the proper support due to it. It has been a sort of "come first, serve first" haphazard proposition on the Indiana campus.

There is no man or woman, either on the campus or in the University city, who would not welcome the abolition of drives. In several other Western conference schools the nuisance has been greatly abated.

One of the methods that might obviate this here would be to run a single drive at the beginning of the school year on the Community Fund plan. A definite goal could be set, and students would be asked to contribute

Play-Off Dates Are Announced

Loyola Play R.M.C. in First Game

With intermediate college football schedules in both eastern and western divisions coming to a close this week, arrangements for play-offs have already been begun and dates for the inter-sectional play-downs were announced yesterday.

They were given as follows: October 31—Loyola at R.M.C. November 3—R.M.C. at Loyola. November 7—Western section winners at eastern section.

November 10—Eastern section winners at western section.

Royal Military College have already been declared Kingston section champions and Loyola have only to go through the motions this afternoon of beating University of Montreal to clinch their claim to the eastern sectional honors. The maroons defeated University of Montreal by a 68-0 score in their first meeting and even should Bishop's win today against MRC, Loyola can take the title by defeating the French students. Bishop's play at Molson stadium and U. of M. at Loyola campus.

Royal Military College won the Kingston sectional title by defeating Queen's University seconds twice. They are the only two teams in that section. The round score was 13-5 for the cadets.

In the Toronto district, St. Michael's and Western are standing another neck-and-neck race much after the fashion of last year when both teams went through the season without a defeat until the final game when they met each other and the present Dominion champions, Western, won by a single point. Both St. Mike's and Western have won all their three games by large scores and they meet in the final and deciding game at St. Michael's campus on Saturday. On the season's performance, Western are favored to win the game and the championship.

The standing to date with Saturday's games only yet to be played is:

	W.	L.	T.	Pts.
Western	3	0	0	55
St. Michael's	3	0	0	69
O. A. C.	1	2	3	29
Varsity	1	2	3	34
Osgood Hall	0	4	0	114

An eastern junior play-off is scheduled for this afternoon along with the final intermediate fixtures when Bishop's journey to Montreal to play Loyola. Bishop's do not play any junior league games and after the winner of the Loyola-McGill home and home series is declared the Lennoxville team come to Montreal for a sudden death contest to decide the winner of the eastern section. The team that triumphs this afternoon will represent the eastern section against Queen's Juniors who beat R.M.C. in the Kingston section. As in the intermediate play-down regulations the champions meet the winner in the western section Varsity are again picked to win in Toronto, having taken that title for a number of years and figured prominently in the Dominion play-downs. M.A.A.A. Juniors won the Canadian title last year by defeating the "T" in the final here.

"Hank, dear," said the burglar's wife, "please don't make so much noise when you come in tonight."

to a general fund, portions of which would be given to each cause.

If the community chest idea, which was adopted by the city of Bloomington last year, were instituted on the campus, it would not only eliminate the obnoxiousness of repeated drives but would insure those organizations now conducting them a definite income.

This also would lighten the burden of support of those who have been hardest hit in the past. This relief system comes at a present from The Daily Student merely as a suggestion. To those who have been glancing under the repeated lash of drives, The Daily Student invites their views toward remedying the disagreeable features of raising funds to insure the success of student enterprises dependent upon donations.

Dents Lose To Commerce 18-0

Consiglio Starred In Inter-faculty Fixture

MUDDY FIELD

Dentistry Obligated To Play One Man Short In Second Half

Playing football in a veritable sea of mud yesterday afternoon the Commerce twelve emerged from the fray with Dentistry on the long end of an 18-0 score. Heavy going, owing to the condition of the field and loose play were the order of the day but the Commerce men had the edge in all branches of play.

The feature event of the afternoon, according to those well versed in football for the past few years came when Sparkes made yards for the Dentists and it is rumored that this will go down in history as one of the greatest events in Dental football. Dentistry turned up with a sad lack of substitutes and by the end of the first half it was evident that they were suffering considerably from source and after half-time were obliged to play one man short.

Consiglio was the star of the Commerce team and his playing was a major factor in the Commerce victory. Gillespie also on the Commerce squad played a fine game at outside but was injured by a well-placed kick in the groin and had to retire.

The scoring consisted of three touches and three rouges none of the Commerce attempts at converting being successful.

Syracuse Student Court Inaugurated

Twenty Offenders For First Meeting

(By Exchange Service) Student judicial action to punish violations of undergraduate regulations will be inaugurated on the Hill at 7.30 o'clock tonight when 20 alleged violators are scheduled to appear before the Student Court to answer charges filed against them.

Anthony Caffrey, chief justice, will preside at the opening session, while with him on the bench will be Justices Stanley Edmunds and Lewis Davis. These three seniors will decide the punishment to be meted out to those found guilty.

The nine associate justices of the Court will act as jury to determine the guilt or innocence of those brought before them. There will be no prosecuting attorney nor defense lawyer, and it is expected that everyone who testifies will be automatically on his honor to tell the truth without being sworn.

Members of the Vigilance Committee who handed the summons to the offenders, will be required to appear to present evidence against the men being tried. It is planned to keep the proceedings progressing in the most dignified and serious manner possible, in order to impress the violators with the solemnity of the occasion.

Most of the students who will appear before the Court tonight were summoned for violations of freshman rules, and it is expected that they will be let off with a severe warning, unless their cases appear to warrant more drastic action.

The chief interest of the session will centre, however, about the cases of two freshmen who were given tickets to appear because it is alleged they were electioneering at the polls in the College of Business Administration on Tuesday. John Lalldaw and J. Leonard Gorman, president and vice-president of the Senate, respectively, who had charge of the election in that college, have been notified to be present at the meeting to testify regarding the matter.

The session will not be open to the public, as it is not desired to humiliate anyone who may be found not guilty of an offense, but it is the policy of

Soccer---Gossip

Had every team in the Interfaculties Soccer League the enthusiasm that is Science's, then there would not have been any matches postponed. Owing to the poor weather that we have had within the past two weeks, three matches have been postponed. Science turned up in full force yesterday, as a matter of fact, they had more than a full team, and could have lent Theology some of their players. The league cannot function properly if the players are afraid of a little rain or mud. The match between Theology and Medicine will come off, rain or shine, on Thursday. The following are the teams:

Science:—Brown, Apter, Muller, Gavin, Acona, Denny, Doherty, Stohert, Kerry, Brownell, Tucker, Gonzalez.

Medicine:—McKinnon, Sparks, Mollett, Randazzo, Brownrigg, McEwen, Fitzgerald, Fuller, Shapiro, Sinclair, Tuttil.

Fencing Club Meets Today

Training to Take Place in Montreal High This Year

The first meeting of the McGill Fencing Club will be held this afternoon at five o'clock in the Boys' gymnasium of the Montreal High school. The move from Stratheona Hall was made as the club desires to secure the two points awarded for the best team points in the Intercollegiate Assault-at-Arms and it was decided that the two days a week in Stratheona Hall was not sufficient for this purpose. Adequate locker room and excellent shower facilities were drawing cards for the new quarters.

The regular hours for fencing workouts this season will be Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 5 o'clock. The club has been fortunate in again securing the services of Coach Raymond and he will be present at the practice next Friday. All interested are requested to turn out today as the members of the club last year will be on hand to give instruction to the novices in the preliminary manoeuvres. Second year men may go through with certain wrist exercises which must be accomplished before serious instruction from the coach can be appreciated. The only necessary equipment is a foil and a pair of canvas shoes. New men are advised not to buy a foil until they have consulted the senior fencers or the coach as to the proper kind.

This year the club offers many inducements, paramount among which will be the acceptance of the invitation of the University of Norwich to send a team of five men to return their visit of last year. Three men are to make the trip to Kingston to participate in the Intercollegiate Assault-at-Arms. A series of intramural meets will also be arranged with M.A.A.A. and the Montreal Sword Club. Special arrangements can also be made for instruction in preparation for the Dominion and Provincial Fencing Meets in the spring. All other details can be obtained A. T. McKergow at Lancaster 7520.

"Do you all want me to shoot these head files for you?" queried Merle, the freshman from Chicago.

"Oh, no," whispered Malory in a low, sweet voice. "Let them run around in their bare feet a while longer."

First Workout For Wrestlers

Tommy Matthews Coaches Boxing Squad

With Coach Bert Light away on his honeymoon the members of the boxing squad who turned out yesterday afternoon were prepared for an easy workout but when Tommy Matthews, city welterweight champion and a star of the Y.M.C.A. team arrived in the gym a quick change in appearance was noticeable. Within a very few minutes the temporary coach had the squad working in a manner which would make Coach Light himself sit up and take notice.

About forty men were out for the practice and prominent among those out for the first time was Fred Taylor, intercollegiate heavyweight champion, who until recently has been busy turning out with the track team. Horn another member of the track team and a 126 lb. boxer who gave Musselman a hard time of it in last year's college meet was also among those out so that by the time Coach Light has returned the squad will be organized and ready to start serious training for the annual at-arms. Yesterdays workout took the usual practice form setting-up exercises being followed by independent sparring among members of the squad.

The wrestlers held their first meet of the year on Wednesday when Coach George Smith gave the men a short talk and got the season under way. Derrick was the only member of last year's team to show up but several other veterans are at present working at other sports and will probably show up in the near future. It was decided at the same time to hold the Wednesday practices during the year at seven-thirty instead of at five o'clock as has been done previously; the practices on Mondays and Fridays will continue to be at the usual hour. No practice will be held today as the hall will not be available.

Basketballers May Enter City League

Practices Start Next Monday at M.H.S. Gym

McGill is likely to enter a team in the senior city league this year. It was made known yesterday, although as yet no definite decision has been made on the proposed move. The college will thus be represented by two senior squads for it was pointed out that the intercollegiate team and the representation in the city league will be two different aggregations.

Basketball practices for the red teams commence Monday at the Montreal High School gymnasium to continue three times a week throughout the winter season.

Captain John Young, Harry Blumstein, of the seniors, and McGill Basketballers who have not returned to college this year. A new captain will thus need be elected from those of last year's squad who are back and who include the following: Fred Weldon, George Faulkner, Al Grossman, Haylen and Munroe. Of last year's intermediates there are Calhoun, Felgenbaum, Harry Church and Wykes.

There are also several promising newcomers who are practically certain to find places on one of the senior teams if they turn out for basketball. Notable among them is, of course, Don Young, of the Ottawa City team who is expected to turn his attention to the court as soon as the football season is finished. Another newcomer with a fine record is Rice, who hails from Mount Allison, the team which last year won the Maritime senior title and got as far as the semi-finals in the Dominion play-offs. Bill Sellers, who entered McGill from Westhill High this fall, also looks like a promising candidate.

Dates for exhibition games with American colleges that form part of the basketball team's activities each year were announced yesterday. Two short trips are planned by the McGill intercollegiate squad this year to take place of the usual rather extensive Christmas holiday trip across the border. The red team will play Dartmouth at Hanover on December 11 and University of Vermont in Burlington on December 15. On January 2, they take the road again and play West Point on that date and Pratt Institute the day following.

One home exhibition will be played this year, that with Clarkson University, of Potsdam, New York, where McGill has been an annual visitor for the last three years. The opening of the intercollegiate season finds McGill with a bye and Clarkson will play here on that date. In the three years of competition, the Americans have scored two out of three victories. The college schedule sends Queen's on their westward trip playing Toronto and University of Western Ontario on successive nights.

Social Award Is Announced

£400 Competitive Studentship Offered by London In.

A new scholarship is being offered for competition at McGill by the Garton Foundation of London, England, according to information received by the Vice-Chancellor's office. It is a Studentship in the Social Sciences, namely Economics, Sociology and Psychology, and will have the value of £400 a year, tenable for two years. Students in any of these three departments who feel themselves "exceptionally qualified" should see the head of their department to whom full particulars have been sent.

The full application papers of the candidate recommended by the University must reach the Foundation not later than February 1st, 1929.

The Studentship is intended to enable exceptionally qualified students of either sex to undertake a research in the Social Sciences, and is intended to benefit those who are largely, if not entirely, dependent on their own resources.

Graduate and partial students as well as undergraduates are eligible for the Studentship. No application forms are available for candidates. The selection for McGill is to be made by the Board of Governors in consultation with the heads of the three departments. Application forms are filled in after the representative has been selected.

In addition to the £400 at which the scholarship is valued, there will be a conditional allowance, explained in the regulations which have been sent to the three departments concerned. In general the procedure is the same as with the "1881 Exhibitions," one of which comes to McGill frequently though not every year.

No, every one isn't interested in the presidential election! For more than a year, it seems that the chief topic of conversation has been whether Coolidge would "Choose to run;" whether the Democrats would nominate Smith and the Republicans, Hoover; and now who our next president will be. In fact, it was the general belief that every one was "fed up" on politics—but we were wrong, mighty wrong.

Colleges are supposed to enlighten people and Louisiana State University "saw its duty and done it" for one fair co-ed found out for the first time on October 15, that Herbert Hoover and Al Smith were not prominent men on the campus but the presidential nominees.

The "enlightenment" took place in the women's dormitory when the straw ballots issued by The Reveille were distributed among the co-eds to express their opinions. This particular girl who apparently had no interest in politics was given a ballot and her first question was, "What's this for?"

"To vote on," was the answer.

"To vote for whom?" was the next question.

"Oh! the president—it is just for an experiment to get the student vote for The Reveille."

"Well, which one is the most prominent on the campus? You know, I don't know anything about either one of them."

"Reveille."

Study Groups Are Organized

"What Can I Believe" Among Topics to be Discussed

Study group organization in connection with the S.C.A. is almost completed, according to Mr. C. M. Stewart, the Secretary, when seen yesterday. He said that at least six groups were already well rounded out, but that there was adequate opportunity for everyone interested in the subjects to be discussed to associate himself with almost any of the nuclei already organized. He urged that all who would like to look further into the matter should see him at the S.C.A. office in Strathcona Hall.

Two or more groups will have as their theme for discussion "What Can I Believe?" and will be led by Rev. L. H. Hough who recently came to the American Presbyterian Church from Detroit, and by Rev. Errol C. Amaron, Assistant Pastor at the same church. Mr. Stewart will lead a group on St. Paul, a line of study in which he is much interested.

Rev. Lawrence Clare of the Church of the Messiah will conduct a valuable course of study by leading a group on Comparative Religions. A number of men whose interest lies in world matters will discuss International Relations and Missions. Wendell MacLeod is to lead a group on the Life of Jesus.

Mr. Stewart says that if any students have a desire for groups on other subjects than the ones stated above, he would be obliged if they would collect a number of others of like mind and then see him at the S.C.A. office so that a leader could be arranged for.

Me. What's the population of Chicago?

You: I don't know, but I'll tell you how you can find out.

Me: How's that?

You: Take half of the number of the people who live there and multiply it by two.
